

GIRL AT THE PUNK SHOW

A black and white photograph of a punk show. The background is a dense crowd of people, with many hands raised in the air, some holding up phones or cameras. The lighting is bright and somewhat hazy, creating a sense of a large, energetic event. The overall tone is gritty and rebellious, consistent with the punk theme of the text.

These are my two feet
My personal space
The spot where I stand
Where you cannot be
This is the space I take up.

These are my two boots
On this grimy floor
Holding my ground
Without apology
This is the space I take up.

I will defend it
With elbows, with fists
With a snap of my head
With a shove of my hips
This is the space I take up.

You cannot be here
I will not leave
Unbroken, unbowed
And still on my feet
This is the space I take up.
